The Commission is pleased to note the cordial treatment it has received, and the willingness of the lot holders to pay for the care of the lots. There is evidently a growing desire to preserve and increase the beauty of the cemetery. Thirteen hundred dollars

($1,300.00) has been donated for special and perpetual care of lots. The Commission wishes to emphasize the wisdom of providing for the present and future care of the lots. The Commission recommends for the care and improvement of the several cemeteries in town the coming year an appropriation of one hundred dollars.

E. D. LORING,
Secretary North Yarmouth School Fund.

Report of the School Committee and Superintendent of Schools.

We submit the following report for your approval.

The schools of North Yarmouth are in line for progress. That the schools exist for the benefit of the children, and that their interests are the chief interests involved, seem to be truths so obvious that no one could overlook or disregard them; yet we must ever keep in mind that we must be unselfish in our service to the children and endeavor in every way possible to promote their welfare. We should try to make our service as valuable as possible and to make the returns to the community for the money it provides as large as possible. The next aim should be to utilize fully the ability of each scholar by assigning him the work best suited to his qualifications, and by making the conditions under which he works favorable and enjoyable.

TEACHERS.

We have had a staff of teachers the past year that have labored hard for the welfare of the pupils under their charge. After the opening of the fall term, which is the beginning of the school year, we have made no changes. This is a decided advantage, as a frequent change of teachers does more to check the advance of a school than anything else.

Our teachers are fully alive to the fact that while books, to be sure, are to be studied, and studied chiefly, in most of our schools, yet they realize there is much for the teacher to do towards the growth of the mind which is not to be found in school-books, and it is the practical recognition of this fact that constitutes the great difference in teachers. Truth, in whatever department, is open to the faithful teacher. The profession of teaching is advancing. Much more is required of the teacher of the present than the teacher of ten years ago. This may well be so; for within that time quite an advance has been made in the compensation offered to teachers. When our people are convinced that teachers are better than they were years ago, then they will be ready to reward them.

TEXT BOOKS AND SUPPLIES.

We have carried out the suggestion made last year and have commenced to displace the old Morton geographies that were badly worn by substituting Tarr and McMurry and the Dodge. The schools have been furnished with Textbooks and supplies. We used a portion of our appropriation for music books.

REPAIRS.

Before the schools opened in the fall the Buxton, Walnut Hill, and Hick's schoolbuildings were made cheerful and attractive by having the walls and ceilings tinted. Later a portion of the fence, at the Walnut Hill school, was rebuilt. The purposes for which the appropriation is asked this year will be fully explained by your committee if desired.

PROMOTION.

The promotion of pupils is a matter requiring not only constant and careful attention, but good judgment and a steady resolution to serve the best interests of the individual child. The tendency is to hold pupils back, unduly, rather than to push them forward too rapidly. There is no single standard of measurement by which the fitness of all may be determined. Every wise and experienced teacher knows that the written test so often applied is entirely inadequate and in many cases misleading. The teacher who has to make out the promotion cards at the end of the year, possibly after only one term of service with the pupils, must have something as a guide. The all-important question which must be asked and answered is, where is the best place for this child? Where will all his educational interests be best served? When this has been carefully considered and determined according to the best judgment of the teacher and superintendent, the child should be placed there.

MUSIC.

We regret the illness of our music teacher. The work in music has been of an exceptionally high character. Near the commencement of the year the New Educational Music System was adopted. The aim has been to make the music period one of pleasure as well as educational value. The fundamentals of music have been taught step by step. When the child first enters school he is taught simple little songs whieh appeal to the little people. Great care has been taken in the choice of good material. These songs are gradually increased in difficulty, according to grade and understanding. With this song drill, theory must be presented in an interesting manner. Individual work and sight singing trains the child to think and act independently, and in this way gains confidence in himself which is an aid, not only in music, but in other things which may be required of him.

The Commission wish to thank the citizens and lot owners of the several cemeteries for their kindness and helpfulness the past year. We note with pleasure the general improvement of the lots. While there are some which remain in an unkept condition, we wish to impress on the owners of such lots the necessity of improvement.

Nineteen hundred and fifty dollars (1,950 00) has been donated for special and perpetual care of lots. We wish to emphasize the wisdom of providing for the present and future care of lots.

The Commission recommends for the care and improvement of the several cemeteries in town the coming year an appropriation of one hundred dollars.

Respectfully submitted,
CHARLES R. LORING,
Chairman of Commission.

E. D. LORING,
Secretary North Yarmouth School Fund.

Report of the School Committee and Superintendent of Schools.

The following brief report of the condition of our schools is submitted for your consideration and approval.

The people of North Yarmouth have a right to expect that our public schools should train their children for good citizenship. When the home, the school and the community work together, we may expect results such as all interested citizens are looking forward to with interest. When our boys and girls see their part in making their community life all it can be, they will not be satisfied with poor roads, a low production per acre on our farms, a school that is inefficient or a lack of the greatest of all powers, neighborhood co-operation in every undertaking which is for the welfare of the town. The school should be first in raising the standard of community life. When the older pupils are careful in their treatment of the younger ones, when all are loyal to their teacher and respectful to all with whom they come in contact, then the discussion relative to the education of our pupils will be to see how plans may be formulated whereby those children may be lifted to the highest round of the ladder of success. The formation of habits of neatness, the proper care of all school property and the love for beautiful surroundings combined with a knowledge of how to do things well, is the future capital by which our boys and girls may obtain good situations, when they have finished their school course, and go out into the world to work for themselves.

TEACHERS.

The past year has been one of unusual success. We have been fortunate in our selection of teachers and the interest manifested by all has been worthy of the highest commendation. Every elementary school teacher admits that it is difficult to teach all branches so as to get equally satisfactory results. We often hear our teachers say, "I feel almost discouraged about my sixth grade arithmetic class" or "my fifth grade language class is not doing good work" or "my eighth grade does very good work one day but poor work the next." This is characteristic of all our schools and does not signify, in the least, that our teachers are inefficient or lack enthusiasm. It is one of the inevitable conditions that now exists and always has existed since public schools were established. It is conditions of this kind that we are endeavoring to overcome by getting the pupils especially interested in the study that seems hard to him.

The teachers of North Yarmouth are those who have had Normal training, or a number of years experience, thus fitting them to meet and overcome the obstacles that all teachers have to face some time during their teaching career.

TEXT BOOKS.

Owing to the large number of pupils attending the Hick's school and for lack of room in that building several of the pupils were conveyed to the Walnut Hill school necessitating the addition of several new books, as we could not take any from the Hick's school at that time. The demand for primary arithmetics has been much larger than formerly owing to the promotion of a large number of pupils to a higher grade where a text book was required. The schools have been well supplied and a majority of the pupils take an interest in taking good care of new books furnished.

REPAIRS.

The school buildings have received careful attention. The Walnut Hill building has been shingled, the Buxton painted outside and the interior of the Dunn thoroughly painted. The other incidental repairs have been attended to. The expense the coming year wiil not be as large a last year.

MUSIC.

Our music tcacher has been unable to carry on the instruction in music during most of the winter term but our teachers have carried along the work to the best of their ability and the music teacher has been much pleased with the results. We hope to be able to resume the work in spring.

A nice piano has been purchased for the Dunn school owing to the efforts of the teacher and the hearty cooperation of parents and pupils.
